ABOUT JOYCE

Joyce Marter, LCPC

Joyce Marter has been a Licensed Clinical Professional Counselor since 1998, providing therapy for individuals, couples and families dealing with issues related to mental health, addiction, relationships, and personal and professional development. Marter is the Founder of Urban Balance, a counseling practice she started in 2004 and grew to over 100 therapists working from nine locations during her 13-year tenure as CEO. She has been awarded Distinguished Alumni of the Year (2008) by The Family Institute at Northwestern University and was selected by Crain's Chicago Business for the "40 Under 40" List of 2010.

Marter is currently Chief Brand Ambassador for Refresh Mental Health, a company that owns and operates outpatient mental health practices throughout the United States. She is the Chair-Elect of the Midwest Region of the American Counseling Association, immediate Past-President of the Illinois Counseling Association, and a two-term Past-President of the Illinois Mental Health Counselors Association.

With a passion for applying psychology to business, Marter is a public speaker for corporations, universities and counseling organizations. She is a blogger for PsychCentral and The Huffington Post.
