

Jason Marotzke, M.Ed.

National Professional Speaker, Northwestern University
Affiliate Professor, & Human Rights Campaign (HRC) Trainer

Jason Marotzke, M.Ed. is a consultant and speaker with Joyce Marter Enterprises, Inc., teaching ethics and providing supervision for masters-level therapists-in-training. He is a Nationally Certified Human Rights Campaign Welcoming School Facilitator and an active leader in state, regional, and national counseling association boards, including having served on the American Counseling Association's Governing Council as the Midwest Region Representative.

In addition, Jason is a graduate of The Second City and completed all five levels of improv training, participating in sold-out shows.

Jason Marotzke has over 20 years of experience in counseling, education, public speaking, and training.

He is a seasoned presenter for children, adolescents, and adults on a variety of topics related to counseling and wellness, including the use of improv in team building, parenting, mental health awareness, communication and conflict resolution, LGBTQIA+ awareness and inclusivity, and creating open and collaborative working environments.

As a skilled educator and trainer, Jason's presentation style is highly interactive and humorous, with engaging activities and exercises that facilitate team interaction and powerful learning experiences.
